It was an evening to remember as sarod maestro Ustad Amjad Ali Khan performed alongside UK based Orchestra Sinfonia Verdi conducted by the internationally acclaimed David Murphy at the open air amphitheatre of Kala Academy, Panaji, recently. The Root of Fire Concert took the audience on a magical journey where the melody of the East merged with that of the West.

The amphitheatre was packed with music enthusiasts and the one and a half hour long performance kept the audience entertained throughout the evening. UK based Orchestra Sinfonia Verdi conducted by David Murphy performed pieces by Mozart and a Weber composition for Bassoon among others. The concert began with a brief performance by the students of Lourdes Convent, Saligao. The students were part of a two day master-class conducted by David Murphy. Held under the aegis of the Deccan Heritage Foundation, the concert celebrated and inspired young, aspiring instrumentalists with a musical dialogue that has existed between the East and the West for centuries. Recipient of the Padma Vibhushan, Ustad Amjad Ali Khan began his performance with a composition of Rabindranath Tagore's, 'Ekla Chalo Re'.

He then performed the main composition 'Samaagam' in collaboration with Sinfonia Verdi conducted by David Murphy.

Deciphering the Luso-Indian art of the past

"When talking about Indo-Portuguese we take into account the dialogue in art forms created by the skilful hands of local artisans and the European treaties they interpreted never disregarding the inheritance from other societies and cultures in India before the Portuguese. It's a rather original phenomena where techniques are influenced by India's own artistic culture," says Reis.

When speaking about the De Artibus Project in Goa and talking about the work, and expected results, Pestana states that more than restoring (which is typically mistaken with renewal, glorification, beautification, renovation, etc., neither of those are effective techniques of conservation-restoration) the Project is interested in preserving, maintaining the materiality of the work and retain the wrinkles of time that has gone through the art objects. "For this to be effective, we need to rely in the analytic studies provided by the most recent technology available and other complimentary research and analysis. This kind of work can provide with information about the materials used and, therefore, help deciding the next steps towards its conservation," says Pestana.

(Fundacao Oriente, Fontainhas, Panaji, will host the conference on the art of the 16th and 17th centuries in Goa. Vanessa Antunes will speak about 'Painting in Goa in the 16th and 17th centuries: hits and acquiresments' and José Pestana will speak about the "Mural painting in Goa: study, preservation and conservation". The conference will be held at the Fundacao Orient premises in Fontainhas today, January 24 at 5:30 p.m. The event is open to all.)
